GILEAD C. C. C. CAMP AT WORK ON THREE PROJECTS

200 Men Divided Into Crews Building Roads in National Forest—Athletes Play Part in Camp Life

Three road projects, supervised by the Forestry Division of the Federal Department of Agriculture, are under way from the Wild River camp of the Civilian Conservation Corps Company, No. 155. Two are automobile roads, the third is building up the trail on Mount Washington which leads up through Tuckerman's Ravine.

The first objective of the C. C. C. is the completion of a road through Evans Notch, connecting Wild River and Chatham, N. H. To date the work has progressed about half a mile from the Wild River camp and includes a steel bridge. A fleet of 20 local trucks, with drivers, work out of two gravel pits. Work is being pushed from Chatham by another C. C. C. group. The two will meet at the top of the Notch.

A second objective is a road, to follow the line of the railway from the summer station at the head of Wild River and continue through to Pinkham Notch where it will join route 16 near the Glen House. In the days when Hastings was a thriving hamlet, manufacturing a goodly portion of the nation's wood alcohol supply, this railroad carried the wood to the mill at Hastings, and the finished product to the railroad's terminus at Gilead station. With cheaper alcohol available from Canada the factories at Hastings for Wild River to you were abandoned and the steel rails run up. The building of an auto road through that part of the mountains will give a shorter route around the mountains for people of this part of Maine, and a different and unique view of the Carter-Moore Range and Mount Madison and Washington.

The personnel of the C. C. C. camp is under command of regular army officers. Capt. J. McMillan is in active charge of camp life. Recreational activities are in charge of Lieut. Augustinus, who has built up one of the best ball teams seen in this part of the country. Recently 90 members of the camp were transferred to C. C. C. camps nearer their homes. Recruits to fill their places were enrolled from Gorham and Berlin. The revamped baseball team includes four members of the Gorham, N. H., town team. The C. C. C. team will be a big attraction at the Field Day here next Saturday, when in addition to the Ford races, motorcycle races and bicycle races, the C. C. C. team will play a Bethel squad managed by Robert Littlehale.

Dr. T. Hutchinson of Auburn, Me., and Mrs. Roy Davis of Danielson, Conn., were callers Wednesday at the home of their cousin, Mrs. Maude Sanborn, en route to their former home in Dexter.

Friends of Miss Barbara Herrick will be pleased to know that she has been awarded her cap after completing a very difficult six months probationary course at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Van went the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davis and children at Camp Graylock, Locke Mills. Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Lord and son Donald were guests of the Davises several days this week.

CARS LEAVE ROAD

A Ford roadster owned and driven by Minnie Howard of Portland left the road near the residence of D. R. Cole at Greenwood Center Saturday night and went down some 20 feet over a bank of boulders. The car was badly damaged but the occupants of the car, two ladies and a gentleman, were not injured.

The same night a young lady and gentleman with a Massachusetts Ford roadster did not make the turn at Herman Mason's on the Locke Mills road. The car was nearly overturned in the ditch and needed some repairs. The young lady was badly shaken up.

COLLEGIANS DEFEAT WEST BETHEL—BENEDICTS LOSE TO SO. RUMFORD SUNDAY

In a doubleheader at Riverside Park last Sunday afternoon the Collegians look over West Bethel in seven innings while in the meantime the Benedicts were noosed at South Rumford by a score of 11-1. In the first game the home team of the Hood and the pitching of Bob Littlehale were the main factors.

In the nightcap game costly errors paved the way for a South Rumford win by an 11-0 margin. After the game had been tied at 11 all. The main cause of the loss was made by the Benedicts in the third inning when six of their 11 runs came across the plate before they were retired. The hitting of Hovee for the Benedicts and Allen for South Rumford were the main shining lights of the game. Larvee, playing his first game for the Benedicts, played a great all around game at catcher and first baseman. His error in throwing to second cut a run down from scoring further.

On Sunday, July 23, the Benedicts will travel to South Rumford where they will attempt to get revenge for their loss of last Sunday. It is hoped that Mr. Wilson's arm will be in shape by that time and that we will once again have Lucien Littlehale with us. He was absent from the lineup last Sunday which weakened the team no little.

BETHEL MUSICIANS REVIEW PAST YEAR'S STUDY

The Bethel Musicians, with their leader, Daley D. Chase, met at Mrs. Henry Austin's Tuesday afternoon for their club meeting. The club organized a year ago and has nearly doubled its membership during this time.

At this meeting there was a review of the 12 composers and musicians studied during the year. A story of life and a well known composition was given by Kathryn Davis, Barbara and Muriel Hall, Evelyn Hunt, Margaret Fish, Emma Blake, Maynard Austin, Barbara Lutton, Irving Brown, and June Chapin.

After the meeting a picture of the members was taken in the lawn overlooking the Bethel hall.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Lucile Davis Tuesday, Aug. 22, and the composer to be studied will be Max Baer, a modern composer; and the memory contest will be choral.

New officers for the coming year were elected:
President—Phyllis Davis
Vice-President—Evelyn Hunt
Treasurer—Jane Chapin
Secretary—J. Maynard Austin
Flower Committee—Margaret Fish, Robert Greenleaf, Barbara Hall, Kathryn Davis.
Reporter—Florine Bean

ALL SET FOR SUCCESSFUL FIELD DAY

Model T and Motorcycle Entry Prospects Good for Some Fast Racing

The Field Day at Riverside Park is now in the hands of the weather man. A bright, sunny day is all that is needed to go with the fast Model T Ford races, the motorcycle races, the bike race and the great ball game that has been arranged.

Right now there are cars enough in sight to insure four good Model T heats of three miles each. The record, so far as we can learn, is a mile in 1:24 by Nap Macchia in a practice heat. Bob Littlehale and Leslie Merrill are both down around 1:30 for the mile. Jesse Warren from South Newry says he intends to show the crowd some real speed Saturday afternoon. It will be some different with two cars on the track at a time. Slow or fast none the less.

The motorcycle race, which they expect to bring their motorcycle to the track. There have been some reports of a motorcycle race, but none of the time comes to call the race there will be enough entrants for at least three two mile heats. Alfred H. Little from Bangor leads a likely winner. Bob Littlehale is approaching local honors in the event and may spring a surprise with other riders from West Bethel. Racing will start at 2:30 after a two and a half hour wait for the crowd something to look at.

There is no way of picking a winner in the bicycle race. Littlehale made all the kids highly interested. Quite a few registration blanks are out. The two Barbs, Marvin and Raymond from Middle Intervale, two Browns, Donald and Stanley, and Frank Littlehale have their blanks in and are hanging on to free admission tickets.

Entries in all events are being held open to allow more entrants to give greater excitement value to race patrons for their twenty-five cents.

The ball game promises to be the event of the afternoon for local fans.

MRS. GUY T. KENDALL

Word has been received of the death in Portland, Sunday, July 23, of Mrs. Guy T. Kendall.

Mrs. Kendall, who was formerly Mrs. Ruth Bennett, can be remembered by many in town. During her nearly two years here, she was employed in the store of I. M. Stearns. Her personality was most pleasing and she was popular with everyone who had the pleasure of knowing her. While in Bethel, though an Episcopalian in religious belief, she gave freely of her talent in the work of the Universalist Church, where she sang in the choir. The Kendall family were many years residents of Bethel.

Gary P. York entertained several young guests Wednesday at a celebration of his birth. Birthday games were played and the dinner of Mrs. Ralph Perry. Refreshments of birthday cake, sherbet, saltines, chicken and lemonade were served from three to five. Those present were Viola and Francis Perry, Elizabeth Gorman, Adelaide Abbin, Carol Robertson, William Honey and Mary Robertson, William Davis, Joyce Swan, Barbara and Muriel Hall, Earle, Phyllis, Shirley and Verne Eldredge, John Berry, Henry Heath, Gary York, Mrs. Berry and Mrs. E. P. Brown.

BE THE BEST OF WHATEVER YOU CAN

Douglas Malloch

If you can't be a pine on the top of the hill
Be a scrub in the valley—but be
The best little scrub by the side of the hill;
Be a bush if you can't be a tree.

If you can't be a hush be a bit of grass,
And some highway some happier make;
If you can't be a muske then just be a bass—
But the liveliest bass in the lake.

We can't all be captains, we've got to be crew,
There's something for all of us here,
There's big work to do and there's little to do,
And the task we must do is the near.

If you can't be a highway then just be a trail,
If you can't be the sun be a star;
If you can't be the size that you wish or you fail—
Be the size of whatever you are!

INVICTUS

William Ernest Henley

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the Pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever god may be
For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud.
Under the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed.

Beyond this place of wrath and tears
Looms but the horror of the shade,
And yet the menace of the years
Finds and shall find me unafraid.

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll,
I am the master of my fate:
I am the captain of my soul.

GOD'S PURPOSE

Anonymous

What are we here for, you and I,
As the long and wonderful days go by,
Each one stretching to us a hand,
Filled with privileges high and grand?

Born of a meaning our lives must be,
God has His purpose in you and me.

We are here, you and I, to pass along,
Possoms of kindness and gladness and song,
To give of our joy like a sacred cup,
That the hearts around us may be brimmed up,
And to hold to the struggling where'er we stand,
The comfort and strength of a helping hand.

This we are here for, you and I,
As the long and wonderful days go by,
Welcome them gladly, for each one brings,
The duty and beauty of common things,
And as they unfold—shall unfold be,
God's own purpose in you and me.

Benson home this season. Mr. Bryant is an expert gardener. His father, the late John Millett Bryant of Curtis Hill, followed this line of business for years his specialty
being the raising of onions.

Win Buck is working again this season for Albert Russ at "Sunny Side" where a large crop of hay is being made. This is Mr. Buck's fifth season there.

A large number of long-bearded hermits from out in the hills have been passing through town. On questioning one we learned that he was going to get the first shave in thirteen years and spruce up for the races at Bethel, Saturday. He heard a couple of blue jays talking it over and it got him all excited.

Mrs. Emma Perham, practical nurse of Perkins Valley, is now at home for a few days' rest, having had a long period of successful nursing.

Alvah Hendrickson has a crew
of men cutting wood and timber,
also a crew cutting grass and making hay on Bemis meadows at Snow Falls.

John Flagg and Charles Sanborn
are cutting pulp wood for Alvah Hendrickson on the former George Wilson "clearing lot," near Pickett
Hill, Perkins Valley.

Simoon Sanborn, who for several years lived here in South Woodstock, is now living a camp life at West Sumner.

The residents of South Woodstock, both old and young are each Thursday night enjoying the pleasure of attending the band concert
given by the 44 Class band of West
Paris on the recreation grounds.
This band is under the training of Prof. Scarborough, a western gentleman of many years band practice.

John and Junie Allen, our new own babies, are now one month old, born June 25, both getting along fine, and mother nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. John Flagg and family, who have been taking care of Joseph Timothy Bryant for the past year, are soon to move away,
the length of time being just how soon someone can be found to care for Mr. Bryant at his old home here at South Woodstock.

Contrary to the best advice of Chief Big Gun, his braves (who had been admonished to rest from all unnecessary activities, to disport often in the healing waters of the valley, to rest, to sleep, and perchance to dream of the chase) have recently engaged in several minor combats with neighboring tribes. The results have been un-determinable as both tribes claim ed superiority. Chief Big Gun is getting old in experience and feels that a new chief must ere many months be chosen to fill his place as a stronger hand is needed to restrain and hold in hand the braves

of Molly Ockett.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Davis of this place and Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Green of Bryant Pond, attended the dance Saturday evening at the Pavillion, near Johnnie's Bridge,
at Locke Mills.

Everyone who has the opportunity should visit Old Spec mountain.
You are missing one one of the big sights of Maine should you neglect to visit this monumental wonder. No one can realize the grandeur until they reach the heights portrayed above the clouds.

How many have visited the mink farm here in town? It is quite an interesting study to watch them,
but do not go too near the enclosure. You may, like some others, get a thumb or finger nipped. We also have a beaver colony near the center of the town. It is said there are some unfriendly to animals who wish to exterminate these industrious little animals. Wouldn't it be better to enclose the surrounding property and let them remain as one of the reminders of a long ago
lost art of building operations.

The Willing Workers were delightfully entertained July 19, at "Lookout Farm" the home of the Perham family for nearly a hundred years. Mrs. G. W. Q. Perham and Mrs. Flossie Perham were hostesses. The day was wonderful so everybody was right at home, both outside and inside doors. This being the last meeting of the season a social good time was in progress interspersed with music both vocal and instrumental. Dainty refreshments of cake and ice cream were served. At a late hour the happy crowd departed with many good wishes for Quimby and his congenial family; consisting of Mr.
and Mrs. Perham, their son Edwin and wife Flossie, and three grandchildren, Burton, Betty and Catherine, also Auntie Powers and Dennis the man of all work, who has been at the Perham farm for many years and who is genial caretaker
at all times.

MORE SAFETY
MORE MILEAGE

ONE of the strange
facts about the tire
business is—the PRICE
of all tires is about alike.
That being so, you might as well pick the best—
in quality, in safety, in mileage.

What's the best in quality? The public says Goodyear — this tire is preferred by more people than any THREE
other makes of tires.

What's the best in safety? Accurate tests on wet concrete show Goodyears will stop a car quicker than any other tire. The next best tire skidded 10'; more—other tires skidded up to 77' more under exactly the same conditions. And if you want safety from blowouts—
remember that Goodyears give safety in every ply, because every ply is built with Super twist
cord and every ply runs
from head to head.

What's the best in mileage? Bus fleet records show Goodyear Tires give 97% more mileage than they gave five years ago.

Now that oil prices are headed UP — it's more important than ever to get the most for your money. Better look over your tires and buy new Goodyears now while prices are still low.

JOHN L. HOLT

An Appreciation

In this busy world with its multitudinous cares, we are apt to forget those who because of physical infirmities or due to the burden of years are removed from the active life that they once knew.

Many there are, however, who recall with pleasure and satisfaction the subject of this sketch.

There are certain qualities that determine a man's value to society.
Industry, honesty, neighborliness;
these qualities John Holt possessed in marked degree, which fact all who were associated with him would testify to. His hands were never idle, his integrity beyond question, his home, heart and hand always at the disposal of neighbor and friend.

But it was in the more intimate relationships of life that his real nature was revealed.

His home was the shrine to which he brought daily during the sixty years of his married life the offering of love and devotion; his highest joys and keenest satisfactions came in the simple amenities of his old fashioned New England home, where father, mother, and children were united in the bonds of mutual love and sympathy.

The closing years of his life were clouded with great physical suffering, which he bore with Spartan courage; but in spite of constant pain he would greet all with his life-long smile of good cheer.

His children, who in all the years found in him not only a wise parent but also a real pal, will treasure as a blessed legacy the memory of the happy years they spent together.

Our sympathies go out to the companions of this long pilgrimage, and we know full well that the sundering of the ties of a relationship so beautiful can but leave a vacant place in the heart that this world can never fill, but she, too, must find in the storehouse of memory that which will lighten
the path that leads toward life's setting sun.

BETHEL LIONS AT ORR'S ISLAND

In spite of threatening clouds and a few showers seven brave lions and their equally courageous honorees journeyed to Orr's Island last Saturday in response to an invitation from the Auburn Club.

Special inducements were offered, plenty of lobsters, clams and coffee and the possibility of getting the coveted Contest Bell which has already travelled some 800 miles
on its visit to different clubs.

The possibility became a certainty
for Bethel not only had the large-est delegation, but had come the longest distance, so the Bell is now in the possession of the Bethel Lions Club until claimed by some other visiting club, and so hip-hip-hurray! With some effort and a little pep many things are won. The go-getters were Parson Edwards,
Hugh Thurston, Irving Carver,
Prof. Hanscom, Marsh Hastings,
Fred Merrill, and Al Van.

Did we have a good time? Most certainly. What did we do? We met some friendly people, visited with our neighbors, gazed out at sea, watching the sails appearing and disappearing in the fog, and felt poetical, recalled to mind Harriet Beecher Stowe's "The Pearl of Orr's Island," that we read so long ago, saw a most unusual bridge built of split granite, placed cob-ble and covered with cement.

And the roses! Never have we seen such a profusion. Masses of pink and red ramblers.

Of course we visited a gift shop,
and those who had money bought souvenirs and those who didn't stood around and said how cute everything was—and then it was time to eat.

We sat on the rocks and stuffed and gorged ourselves with lobsters
and clams until the waning daylight and gathering fog warned us to be on our way and if this was not the "end of a perfect day" well,
it was good enough and many thanks to Sam Connors and John Storum, the hosts.

Population by Sex
The excess of females in the older countries of the world is largely balanced by the excess of males in the newer countries. In the United States there are about 1,500, 000 more males than females; in Great Britain the excess is about 1,500,000; in France, about 2,000,000
females; in Germany, nearly 3,000, 000 females. Canada, Australia, Argentina, Mexico and China have more males. On the basis of data from 28 countries of the world there appears to be a larger number of females than males, though not a very large majority.

THEL LEGION JUNIOR BASEBALL TEAM DEFEATS RUMFORD

The newly organized Legion Junior Baseball Team journeyed to Rumford last night for its first game of the season, playing the highly touted Junior Baseball team of Rumford. The local boys carried the bacon to the tune of 9 to 1 in one of the finest exhibitions of baseball seen for a long time. The game was featured by brilliant pitching of Stanley Morgan, who fanned 15 men and kept heavy batters of Rumford down. "Rastus" Little saved a lot of trouble in the fifth with a sparkling catch and a throw to third base for a double play, coming with the bases loaded. It saved a world of trouble. Morgan at first base handled the position like a veteran, accounting many difficult throws. "Brown" gave a fine account of himself at third, "Bob" Brown at second with a classy catch of a liner, stopped a potential Rumford rally in the seventh. Besides pitching a heady ball game, helped himself to three hits, a two-bagger.

Belgium's War-Wrecked Territory Is Rebuilt

Belgium is bounded on the north by the North sea and Holland, on the east by Holland, Prussia and Luxembourg, on the west and south by France. The official estimate of population December 31, 1930, was 8,129,821, including Eupen and Malmedy. The Roman Catholic religion is dominant, although full liberty of worship is guaranteed to all, and grants are made by the state to ministers of all denominations. Chief among Belgian exports are manufactures of wool, cotton, flax, leather and glassware, iron, steel and zinc products, and sugar. Many of Belgium's cathedrals and public buildings were destroyed during the war, including the Cathedral of St. Pierre, Louvain, and the ancient University of Louvain, together with its famous library of more than 250,000 volumes. Within ten years after the signing of the armistice the reconstruction of the devastated territory was practically complete.

OLD SPEC MOUNTAIN

DANIEL M. WIGHT

Old Spec was formerly known as Speckled Mountain, but in order to distinguish it from other mountains of the same name in Maine it has been known for quite a time as Old Spec. It is included under the group known as the Border Mountains, i. e., bordering the White Mountains.

The Presidential Range offers an unusual picture when viewed from Old Spec. Mt. Washington (6,283 ft), Mt. Jefferson, Mt. Adams, Carter Dome, Mt. Hight, and many others go to make up a beautiful picture. There are many other points which may be seen from the summit. Umbagog Lake is easily discerned. Upper and Lower Richardson as well as Mooselucmaguntic are also very distinct. Following along the skyline we see Rangeley Saddleback Mountain and the lookout tower there. Roxbury Pond is next as we scan the scene from North toward the East. Directly in back of this is Mt. Blue, also a lookout station, which is near Weld, Me. Many times during the day smoke from paper mills at Rumford is seen. Mt. Zircon lookout is to be seen when light and atmospheric conditions are favorable. The turn in the Androscoggin River between Swan's Corner and Bethel is a point very often noticed and inquired about by visitors. Pleasant Mountain lookout, Sebago and Kezar Lakes are seen to the southeast. Probably the most distant point recognizable without aid of a glass is Mt. Choconna on the lower edge of the White Mountain Range.

There is a general belief that Portland Harbor has been seen with aid of binoculars from Old Spec, but the glass has either been lost or broken and none as powerful reproduced. It is true however that Poland Spring House can be seen at about sunset with aid of a high powered glass. Smoke is frequently seen in the vicinity of Lewiston, undoubtedly from factories there. One could go on to mention many more points of interest to be observed within the 50 or 60 mile circle of which Old Spec Mountain is the center. There were 19 visitors at the summit during the past week. Anyone who is thinking of climbing Old Spec should realize that logging operations are well underway along the trail and that pulp is already being sluiced down the newly constructed sluice. The task of following the trail will be lightened if one remembers to follow the telephone line all the way after it comes into the trail. All water found along the trail is fit for drinking though no one will object if one chooses to pack a case of 2.2 along with them.

Cleveland Fathered rays

One of the last activities of President Cleveland, just before he left the White House to turn the government over to President-Elect McKinley was to sign two district bills, one the appropriation bill and the other a bill which ordered development of Potomac State into what is now known as Potomac park. The launching of this development program was one of the really far-sighted activities in the accentuating of the beauty spots of the Capital.

LOCAL MAN INHERITS MILLIONS

Thus runs the theme of the popular three-act musical comedy, "Breezin' Along," which is to be presented this week by the Judith Grover Tent No. 17, D. of V., of Bryant Pond.

A capable cast of talent from West Paris, Locke Mills, and Bryant Pond has been assembled for this fast-moving farce. Snappy songs, instrumental music, and intricate dance routines cleverly executed by a chorus of local girls, are interpolated throughout the play.

Sparkling comedy, gay costumes, peppy music, and professional acting contribute to make this production an evening of certain enjoyment.

The play, directed by Miss Beryl L. Gadbois of Boston, Mass., is to be shown at the Grange Hall, Bryant Pond, Friday and Saturday of this week, July 28 and 29.

NORMA KNIGHT

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Business taking him over, Geoffrey Enslow, young engineer, takes up his residence with his mother's girlhood friends. They seem a happy, carefree family. Captain Cary, "Miss Nona's" father, the captain's daughter, thoughtless though likable, and little "Tenny" Montague, a restless, who lives with the family.

CHAPTER II.—Cary finds himself much "at home," though Cynthia puzzles him. She is, apparently, the wishes of her family, a "gift shop," and astounded by the suggestion that she should board money, to her, unknown to her mother. He agrees, as much mortified.

CHAPTER III.—Cary's specialty is to be securing and losing jobs. Cynthia openly resents. Geoff, prejudiced against the girl, her seeming venousness.

Why, you see, Cynthia wanted to do something when she came from college. So she started Odds and Ends. She had a little money left her by her father—put it all into this shop. At first did everything herself; and her mother brought in, went without dinner until after she'd closed up. A business picked up and protection she asked me if I wouldn't help her. You bet I did, too.

Elsie with convincing simplicity. "There isn't much I wouldn't do for Cynthia. If it comes to that, the shop really pays for itself."

He gave him an odd look. "It is," she said briefly. "If you see Cynthia you know it's a live proposition with her. She won't go into anything lightly."

"I should say not!" Geoff doctored. "We've got to make enough," she interposed, "to see us through all season that comes between the last trade and the Christmas season. November is a total loss as gift shops are concerned."

"Eyes traveled to a banjo clock ticked on the wall. "Cynthia'll back any minute now, and she'll do anything you want to know about the shop."

Geoff said guiltily that he couldn't select a particularly hideous and expensive "desk set" and asked if before Cynthia's return. His purchase gave him some trouble before he finally prevailed on a waitress at the cafe to take his lunch to accept it.

He visited to the shop had cleared one thing that was beginning to bother him. A dim idea that the ally might be in some manner dependent upon the profits from the Odds and Ends had haunted him several days. But several things contradicted that theory. Every day, for example, Captain Cary a certain gray envelope and extracted a check.

Regalities from a little patent of his always said with open eyes. Sometimes he handed it to daughter and bade her buy her "something pretty" with it. Sometimes he tucked it away in his pocket.

Then, too, Miss Nona sometimes referred to her husband's "date." That word meant to Geoff large holdings which had come to mother and himself from his father. There was no evidence of it in the house where he lived.

Nona wore the prettiest of dresses the food was abundant if somewhat plain. Cary's light heart, indifference to his jobs did not create financial stress.

At last Geoff told himself, that there may be three feet of snow right where you're sitting," Cynthia told her. "I don't remember another October as warm as this up here."

"Something has thawed out."

bition combined with a stubborn determination to have her own way was the motive back of Cynthia's appropriation of Tenny's board money and his own.

"You're a throwback," his mother had told him more than once. "Down in your heart you disapprove of the modern woman, especially the woman in business. Your idea of a woman's whole duty is making herself attractive to her man."

Geoff had laughed but he knew that there was some truth in what she said. Miss Nona came very near to being his ideal of womanhood. She was so gentle, so sweet, so sympathetic. She was feminine to her fingertips, with all the little arts and graces of a bygone generation.

Miss Nona listened with flattering attention to what he said of his laboratory work, though he knew the chemical terms were so much Greek to her. She was everything he had longed for and missed in his mother, in short; and the contrast between her and Cynthia increased his antagonism toward the girl.

"Darn it! Why can't she be like Miss Nona?" he fretted. "She gives a pain with her checking up everything poor little Tenny does."

Her cross-questioning of Cary, even her implied rebukes to her mother! Fall in love with her—I'd as soon—summer! grow sentimental over the marble lady in the garden! She may be kind, but at least she's ornamental!

Almost every Sunday Geoff spent the day in the mountains. Miss Nona and the Captain often went with him if the destination was not too high or the ride too long. Tenny would come if Cynthia would; but Cynthia wouldn't. She pleaded fatigue from her long week, or accounts to be gone over. So it was with a sense of real triumph that Geoff prevailed upon her one October morning to drive with them all to Red Rock lake.

"We'll pack a basket," Cynthia said, entering into the plan with an enthusiasm which astounded its promoter. "There's chicken—Marguerite can fry it and we'll pack it in the thermos basket so it will stay hot. We'll hold a fire and make coffee just for the outdoor-siness of it."

Tenny entered about the room with joy and Miss Nona beamed at her daughter.

"Like to drive?" Geoff asked Cynthia as they went down the steps together.

To his surprise she took the seat behind the wheel and presently they were bowling smoothly along.

Cynthia had discarded her hat, and the tendrils of hair curled about her forehead endearingly. Geoff marvelled at the change in her. She was gay, youthful, charming. She had dropped her weariness, her hint of hostility toward him, her air of worry, like a cloak.

Geoff was suddenly in wild spirits. It seemed to him that never was there so congenial a party as his.

What a dinner that vast Marguerite's fried chicken was crisp and hot; her buttered rolls melted in their mouths.

"Why do we have to go down?" Tenny asked wistfully. "Why don't we just send Cary and Geoff back for some blankets and Mings and stay up here all the time?"

for Geoff's benefit," Cary said significantly. "Your manner toward him, my dear sister."

"Don't you like Geoff, Cynthia?" Tenny wanted to know. She laughed, flushed a little. "I like everybody today! Oh, you can't think what it's like to change the stale air in the shop for the piney breezes up here! I'm like Tenny—I want to stay for ever!"

After dinner Geoff and Cynthia, with Tenny darting ahead of them, completed the circuit of the lake. Geoff remembered that walk for a long time. Somehow they strayed on to the subject of Tenny, and Cynthia talked to him freely about the child.

"She was a delicate little thing when she first came to us. Even now we have to watch her carefully."

"She seems sound as a dollar now," he answered. "Oh, she is! Except that she hasn't any more colds. That's why"—he realized that for the first time she was offering an explanation of one of the things he had disliked in her—"why I'm so strict with her about her cold liver oil and her sweater and all. Tenny respects authority."

"Is that why she adores you?" he asked her with a touch of irony. She hesitated. "Do I seem to you specially authoritative? I suppose I do." Suddenly she turned to him. "Geoff, perhaps I'm not quite as hard on you think I am! At any rate, I may have to be handled very carefully. She's lived in so many places, she's had so many ups and downs that she had acquired a rather terrible distrust of people when she came to us."

"She needed your mother's petting," he said. Cynthia smiled. "Miss Nona's strong point is petting. You could do for a good share of it."

"And, like Tenny, I thrive on it," he replied somewhat aggressively. "As I've told you, my parents were abroad during most of my childhood and I know what Tenny went through at boarding school."

"It must have been hard for your mother," Cynthia commented, "being pulled between her duty to you and to her husband. I—know this will add to your belief in my hardness—I'm glad she was the sort of woman who put her husband first! There's something so magnificent about that sort of love," she said wistfully. "Something so royal in a marriage which allows nothing—not even children—to disturb it!"

Geoff was silent through sheer astonishment. Cynthia's words gave him too a new vision of his mother. For the first time he was able to think of her as a wife as well as a somewhat casual mother.

It was nearly sunset before they turned the car downward and began the long descent from mountain heights to the city below. Geoff had a feeling of extraordinary satisfaction over the day. Cynthia's mind to him heretofore had been like a long corridor in which door after door closed, all closed. Today she had opened several of them and given him fascinating peeps at the rooms within.

CHAPTER V

Tenny.

All the doors were slammed shut again in the days which followed. Sometimes Geoff wondered if that day at Red Rock lake with a comendable Cynthia, a slightly wistful Cynthia, had ever existed save in his imagination.

The girl not only resumed her old reserve but became so irritable and impatient that the little buds of friendship which had sprouted between them withered and died. Definitely he did not like this girl, he told himself. He wondered sometimes if it was his presence in her home which so annoyed her; for that she was annoyed beyond her usual manner was evident to him from her family's comments.

"What does all Cynthia?" Miss Nona sighed. "She's so unlike herself these days."

"She's for the love of Mike!" It was Cary's exasperated voice. "You haven't spoken a pleasant word for days—do you realize it? Come on now, Cynthia! You say the shop is doing well—"

"Cary!" Cynthia's voice cut in so sharply that Geoff started. "Who is that fair-haired girl you're driving about these days?"

Her brother laughed. "That's where the shoe pinches, isn't it, Cynthia—to change the metaphor?"

"Of course it pinches. It ought to pinch you, too. Do you think that it's fair—as things are?"

For once there was resentment in Cary's pleasant young voice. "My dear Miss Atlas, didn't you ever hear that no one is actually indispensable in this world? If you were to go to Europe tomorrow—"

"Or die," she answered. "Never mind me, Cary. I'm used as two sticks these days."

"Are you sure you're well? Seems to me you never used to be so snappy, so—er—latter. Don't you love your big brother any more?" The pinches were filled by his hand on her hair, rumpling it out of its usual smoothness. She was laughing when she escaped.

But the irritability persisted. "Cynthia, my dear," the Captain said gravely one evening. "I really must protest against your overworking as you age about. Is it necessary for you to work so long at the shop every night?"

Cynthia made no reply, and a weary smile at him. It was as usual when she struck straight from the shoulder. "She's let me go. She has to stay till closing time every night."

"You've let Elsie go?" Miss Nona's voice rose protestingly. "Darling, why did you?"

"Just giving her a vacation," was the evasive answer. "She's coming back when business picks up again. Elsie was tired. She needed a rest."

To Geoff's amazement, no one suggested that Cynthia herself was badly in need of a rest. No one said, as Geoff thought they ought to say, that it would be a good idea for Cynthia to sell the shop. He began to watch her, to notice how little she ate, what an effort it seemed to be for her to go upstairs; and one evening he roused her again on the subject of the shop.

"Look here, Cynthia. Why don't you sell that infernal shop of yours and take a vacation yourself? You look like the wrath of God these days. I don't understand what your family is thinking of, not to realize you're just sick! If I—"

He stopped abruptly for she had risen and crossed the room to him, put one hand on his arm.

"Geoff, you're not to say one word to them! You've got to promise me you won't, do you hear? I'm all right." She slipped her hand down his arm, till she touched his hand, pressed it urgently. "Promise! Promise! You'll not speak to Miss Nona."

friend of your family—you're my mother's goddaughter—"

Swiftly her face underwent an entire transformation. Her smile—Geoff admitted Cynthia had a lovely smile "when she uses it, which is darn' seldom!"—flushed, her eyes softened.

"Then promise for their sake! You must have seen that Miss Nona is not strong. I don't want her worried—"

"I suppose she won't worry if you fall ill!"

She walked to the window and stood looking out into the garden.

"Geoff, listen to me," she said after a while. She spoke seriously, as though sure of his understanding. "I'm not very well—I admit that. I'm going to get Elsie back just as soon as it's possible. I can't sell the shop. For one thing, there's no one who would buy it just now. If I promise to spare myself as much as possible—if I come home and rest—will you . . . not . . . say anything to Miss Nona?"

He moved uncomfortably. There had been a hint of tears in her voice just at the end. Why was she so determined to keep her mother in ignorance of her fatigue? Why did she seem on like grim death to that dear shop?

"Please, Geoff?"

"It's not my business, as you just pointed out," he said sharply. She struggled, but the darkened window, walked out of the room.

For the next few days she made a special effort to appear cheerful and rested. She spent her evenings down in the cellar with the rest of them instead of shutting herself upstairs with her accounts. Geoff alone knew that she paid for those hours of labor by her tears at her room door. The usual of several times and saw a crowd of folk beneath her door.

"Why I don't get out of my mind and let her take the consequences of her own foolishness, or break my promise to her and call Miss Nona's attention to the condition in which I don't know," he wrote her one day. "The girl hasn't any more strength than a kitten."

To which Mrs. Enslow replied: "I'm writing Cynthia as you suggest and inviting her to come to New York for the winter. Yes, for the whole winter! I know that surprises you, but all you tell me of the girl impresses me rather favorably. Being a woman, and the sort of woman I am, I can easily understand why Cynthia might not enjoy home life in the Cary household."

"Think, as you value your own safety, mention to her that it was you who urged my invitation. She would regard that beyond everything. Let my letter speak for itself."

He watched Cynthia with interest the morning she opened her mother's letter. Was she read it? Would she express a natural, childish delight? Would she make a delicate pretense to leave for New York?

She did none of these things. She merely put the folded sheet back in its envelope and set it on with her finger. Neither then nor at a later time did she mention his mother's letter to Geoff.

MANHOOD

In the Baptist, forerunner of self, fearless of others like a bullet to its mark. Christian heroes and martyrs of the same stuff. Forty days without food, sleepless nights in the open, hundreds of miles on foot, his enemies without and in blood to Calvary cross. Christianity has been a man's religion, pious, pigny has a life. To be a real Christian out all the strength of manhood in the twentieth century. The cowardly obligations it imposes, weakening shirks its task. Arena should again smoke blood of innocents, if fagot and funeral pyre be kindled, the victims of sin. Thousands and thousands year the name of Christ crowns royal y who would die, if need be.

MAINE 4-H CLUBS SHOW STEADY GROWTH IN ENROLLMENT AND WORK

Enrollment in Maine 4-H clubs has more than doubled in the last ten years, reports Lester H. Shibles, state club leader, who recently reviewed figures for several previous years. In only two years, 1918 and 1926, has the enrollment fallen below that of the previous year.

Along with the consistent gain in enrollment, Shibles finds that the percentage of those who complete their work has been constantly rising. Maine received the National emblem in 1931 for having the highest percentage of club members finishing their work of any state in the Union.

Maine 4-H clubs are sponsored by the Extension Service which has headquarters at the University of Maine. Five hundred seventy-nine men and women give their time without compensation in serving as local leaders. Frank H. B. Heat, Scarborough, is the oldest leader, in point of service, having the Scarborough 4-H club in 1913.

MAINE FARMERS SEEK MOST MODERN METHODS

More requests are being made by Maine farmers and homemakers for assistance from the Extension Service and farm bureaus than in any previous year, says George B. Lord, Orono, secretary of the Maine Farm Bureau Federation, who has completed a report on the fiscal year ending June 30.

Over 4,500 orchardists, potato growers, and blueberry growers requested information on spraying alone. Approximately 6,000 poultrymen requested help on poultry management practices. Bulletins numbering $3,408 were sent to those requesting them. No mailing lists are used in distributing publications.

Three counties, Piscataquis, York, and Knox-Lincoln, had more members at the close of the year than they did in 1932, Lord reports. The total state membership for the year was 10,399. This, though slightly less than the previous year, represents a satisfactory membership considering the difficult financial situation many farmers have faced during the past few years, he says.
